HOME BODY

The folks behind GATHER Home Furnishings (gatherfurnishings.com), located at SOCO & The OC Mix, did not take naming their gallery lightly. The title is meant to expand the meaning of the word gather: The showroom—which is set to officially launch in April—is not only a place to shop, but also serves as a space to come together. “I wanted to create GATHER as a welcoming environment for people of all walks of life to come together,” explains owner Joey Lawrence. There is an emphasis on SoCal style combined with unique pieces you won’t find anywhere else from companies such as the brand’s private upholstery label, Ethnicraft and Loloi Rugs, among others. It will also be the first local retailer to carry Zotto mattresses. With Lawrence—who has been in the home furnishings business more than 21 years, working with clients in Orange County, South Bay and Northern California—at the helm, the showroom is sure to wow. —RC

TIMELESS TEAK

The Bay Area’s Mediterranean climate is made for outdoor living, something L.A.-based designer—and Hollywood at Home (hollywoodathome.com) showroom maestro—Peter Dunham took into consideration when creating his indoor-outdoor furniture line. Now available at Holland & Sherry (hollandandsherry.com) in San Francisco, the Peter Dunham Home collection ($700 to $7,400) consists of a robust, eclectic and timeless grouping of teak, all-weather wicker and rush tables and chairs. Dunham, a native of France, is drawn to San Francisco both genetically—his great-grandparents owned a Berkeley farm—and visually. “It’s one of the most breathtaking cities I know of—the only city that comes close is Istanbul,” he says, “with the hills coming down the bay and the exciting views and the drama of the wind. It feels like a natural place to expand our collection, and I’m excited to collaborate with Holland & Sherry, which has been a great partner.” —Carolyn Zinko

BRIGHT IDEA

Digital manufacturing platform Gantri and design studio Ammunition recently debuted three lighting collections (from $148, gantri.com). Named Carve, Gio and Signal, the styles each include table, floor and wall-mounted lights with a unique approach to craft and sustainability. Designed and manufactured in California, each light is 3D printed on demand and finished in a bespoke manner. “We were thrilled to bring Ammunition’s process and philosophy to the Gantri platform with lighting collections that offer an amazing level of quality, detail and expression,” says Gantri CEO and founder Ian Yang. “They represent our mission to make it easier for people to incorporate great design into their lives.” —Rachel Cohen

A MOVABLE FEAST

During the frenzied height of Frieze Los Angeles, The Future Perfect unveiled the third iteration of Casa Perfect Los Angeles (thefutureperfect.com) with an exhibition of furnishings and a painting (on loan from Hauser & Wirth) from the Wonky collection by renowned American artist Matthew Day Jackson. Sitting high above Beverly Hills on Carla Ridge, the ‘70s-style property by architect Raul Garduno has sweeping views of the city and intimate interior spaces that boast a Japanese-inspired, mid-mod splendor. Rooms and exterior areas are filled with funky, sculptural pieces; bold paintings; and myriad works by The Future Perfect’s stable of international artists and designers. “Casa Perfect was always nomadic by design,” says founder David Alhadeff. “Relocating to a new home every few years allows us an opportunity to shift the context and narrative for the gallery. The newest Casa Perfect L.A. is an amazing find because it so markedly changes the viewpoint for us. Period details from the ‘70s—like vertical blinds, wall-to-wall carpet and popcorn ceilings—feel ultrafresh juxtaposed against our program of contemporary collectible design. L.A. continues to be amazing for us and I’m super grateful for that!” —Matt Stewart

SCOTT MITCHELL HOUSES

Debuting May 5, Scott Mitchell Houses ($65, Rizzoli) features previously unpublished images of eight projects by Scott Mitchell Studio, four of which are based in Los Angeles—including the Malibu abode used in Tom Ford’s gripping film Nocturnal Animals. With geometric hallways and seamless transitions between indoor and outdoor spaces, the sleek homes can be easily mistaken for works of art themselves.

CALIFORNIA HOMES II

Each chapter of California Homes II ($85, Images Publishing)—the sophomore tome from Studio William Hefner coming out June 15—brings more stunning designs from the L.A.- and Montecito-based firm to the pages. Among photographs, different homes are represented by sketches and layouts, allowing the reader to follow Hefner’s creative process.

HOW TO MAKE A HOUSE A HOME

A self-help book of sorts for design enthusiasts, Parachute founder Ariel Kaye’s chic new book’s title is reflective of what lies inside its pages. Starting with a guide to finding your flow, How to Make a House a Home ($30, Penguin Random House), out April 14, continues with instructions on how to stylishly incorporate color, light, textiles and more into your living space.

PRIVATE GARDENS OF SANTA BARBARA

Get ready to be inspired. The recently released Private Gardens of Santa Barbara ($50, Gibbs Smith) by firm Grace Design Associates and founding principal Margie Grace includes images of landscapes trailing through the American Riviera. Each space is uniquely curated to the homeowners’ desires and ranges from Zen oases to secret garden-esque designs.
